

Editor-in-Chief Message

It is prodigious honour and privilege for me to greet the dedicated Editorial board members of the Asian Journal of Medicine and Biomedicine (AJMB) (sponsored by the Faculty of Medicine, Universiti Sultan Zainal Abidin, a public University in the East coast peninsular Malaysia) for their accomplishments of today through their hard work and persistence. My heartiest salutations and a warm welcome to the readers, the authors and the reviewers across globe. Indeed, AJMB is now recognized as an international journal with a considerable proportion of manuscripts being contributed as well as reviewed from outside the country. AJMB will endure to adhere to its original philosophy of perpetuation of sharing of basic medical science experience by our members.

I trust that the most critical components of any scientific journal's success are the submission of high-quality manuscripts, the dedication of members of its editorial board, and the excellence of those reviewing the manuscripts. We take utmost care for arduous peer review of all submitted manuscripts to accept only quality content without any fringe of conflict for publication. I take this occasion to appeal to all authors to prepare their manuscripts strictly according to journal instructions to avoid any gratuitous delay in their editorial processing and disillusionment of rejection.

Now we are in the epoch of Cross-Disciplinary Research-based publications within the (preclinical and clinical) concourses which usually assimilate information, data, techniques, tools, perspectives, concepts and/or theories from two or more disciplines of focused knowledge to progress a rudimentary understanding or to decipher glitches whose solutions are outside the scope of a single discipline or area of research practice. Interdisciplinary publish the manuscripts by mixing the best elements of disciplinary insights by crossing their parent discipline to spawn a more wide-ranging appreciation of the issue at hand. Interdisciplinary publication allows for the synthesis of ideas and the synthesis of characteristics from many fields.

Hopefully, AJMB with support from the vibrant editorial team will endeavour to engender an impact factor for which we bid the submission of more original articles and citation of relevant literature published in this journal in your future publications.
